To whomsoever it may concern

I have known Dr. Ravi Shankar and Dr. Uma of Usha Kiran Hospital in Mysore for nearly two years. When I first visited their hospital, I was very impressed by their commitment to restoring vision for the under privileged children in rural areas. They are dedicated and compassionate, blending their knowledge and kindness in serving them.

They have been working tirelessly to provide excellent eye care of all types, free of cost to the needy for over two decades both in India and abroad, through their hospital and various missions.

Their selfless service continues to provide better vision for children and such noble work should truly be recognized.
